ATTENTION MAIL ROOM!!

The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects free speech. Regulations that permit the government or its employees to discriminate on the basis of the content of the message cannot be tolerated under the First Amendment (vii).

Further, prisoners retain free speech rights. Thought control, by means of prohibiting beliefs, would not only be undesirable but impossible (vi). Fact of conditions and needs of the penal institution impose rational limitations on prisoner free speech rights (iii), but those restrictions must have a "valid, rational connection" to "legitimate penological interests" not related to the content of ideas (iv). Regulations and practices can only be justified when the practice "furthers an important or substantial government interest unrelated to the suppression of expression" (v).

This means you cannot legally suppress the expression of ideas. Prison walls do not serve to form a barrier separating prisoners from the protections of the constitution (vi). Core political speech is most-zealously guarded and there is a public interest in "having free and unhindered debate on matters of public importance—the core value of the Free Speech Clause of the First Amendment" (vii).

Regarding the formation of an IWOC branch there are some issues we’re facing here in Oregon that some folks in other regions may recognize. Organizational roadblocks that can generally be categorized in two parts, each having sub categories.

Also, given the superficial structure called for to achieve IWOC branch status, collectively these things add up to a very difficult climb to successful branch development and an almost impossibility as far as sustainability. Here I will lay out some of our main problems and our theoretical solutions.

From least to most problematic:

• A general complacency, apathy, laziness, class stagnation. A collective psychological dormancy among our population. Usually this takes the shape of psychological escapism; what comrade Patrick Morris calls “Kardashianism”, personalities or fantasy land games or books.

• Gangs, racism, heterosexism and other forms of egotistical bullshit. These forms of divisiveness are simply psychological manifestations of egotism combined with low self-esteem generated by our oppressive environment, true but existent and problematic nonetheless. Numbers A and B are two blades of the same sword, yet can be addressed with a single stroke. Both are psycho social reactions to a single hostile, violent, authoritative environment which propogates and reinforces self-destructive, violent and escapist behavioral patterns.

In essence, we are immersed in a propagandized environment. As anarchists, we have what we call “propaganda of the deed”. While our adversaries use the offensive counterpart to this: propagandized social realities. For example when a pig (cop) makes you stop and spread your legs so he can put his hands on your body. That is a propagandized action which reinforces your sense of helplessness and inferiority.

In the context of this dialectical reality, numbers A and B are our general psycho social reactions. The B category seeks to reassert control over their perception of these realities through reactionary means. The only way they see evidence of having control over anything is by lashing out at the only thing they perceive as weaker than themselves, that is to say, the other people in their own situation. Ultimately this is completely anti-theitical to our own interests as it serves to divide our own class forces so that our adversaries can better control us.

The A category has simply accepted their lot and even often defends their enemies positions rhetorically because it excuses them from having to address their own inertia. Personally I take offense to category A. Sub categories A and B fall into a single general category I’ll call “the psycho social reactive category”, category #1.

Category # 2 I’ll call our “dialectical/material situation”. These consist of the material realities that ultimately result in our psycho social reactions as defined in category #1.

• An oppressor force with superior methodological practices, strategic application, tactical execution, records and research data, protocol, special teams, communicative channels and on and on are all geared solely toward our oppression and further suppression of our greater force of disorganized, uneducated, unmotivated, lazy, hopeless masses.

• The architectural components of our physical location. The name of the game here is the number one rule of war. Divide and control. In order to keep you enemies divided you must isolate those forces from each other.

in support, informing its imprisoned members and trying to promote the strike all possible ways. The National Lawyers’ Guild has decided to support each prisoner who suffers reprisals for participating in the strike. IWOC has created a hotline which prisoners can call 24 hours: 816-866-3808. This link lists groups that have supported the strike: https://supportprisonerresistance.noblogs.org/endorsements/.

RB: What is the relationship between the IWW and IWOC?

CD: IWOC was created by members of the IWW. IWW is a link for prisoners organizing themselves to build solid bridges among themselves and with outside workers. There is a national IWOC committee and a dozen local groups. There are about 800 prisoners and IWW members who are also part of IWOC throughout the country.

MR: IWOC was created to work with FAM because we had many differences with purely union organizations that focus exclusively on wages and working conditions. We in the FAM could not even ask how prisoners are treated like slaves to organize employees. A slave on a plantation cannot pay union dues. For us, especially for the Black masses, this is part of our 460 years of struggle for freedom from slavery in America.

RB: What is the attitude towards prisoners on strike? Is there a lot of tension in the prisons? How have the authorities responded so far?

MR: No one has seen or experienced anything like this, so there is a wide range of feelings. There is tension, but there is always tension in the prison. Authorities are responding as their owners say to respond to a threat to a multimillion dollar business: repression without worrying about the consequences. Remember, judges and prosecutors are all in the same boat.

CD: For example, Sidique Hasan of Lucasville and member of the Free Ohio Movement has been visited by the FBI and has been put in solitary confinement for being spokesman of the movement.

RB: What actions are called for September 9?

CD: There are planned actions in prisons and against companies that benefit from slave labor in about 30 cities. Many cities are planning to view films and hold public debates on that date and afterwards. Other actions will include noise demonstrations outside prisons throughout the country, to let the prisoners know they are not alone in their struggle.

RB: How can we support this fight from abroad?

MR: Continue posting and reporting. Ask people to support the protests in the prisons. Investigate and identify companies that use inmate labor, such as McDonald’s, protest their establishments and to boycott them. And, most importantly, help us inside. Help increase the movement. You can make donations to the Free Movement PayPal at femafamalabarna@gmail.com

CD: The statements of solidarity help. These have been received from prisoners in Greece, Bulgaria and Mexico. We ask people not to buy products from companies that profit from prison slavery. We would like to see prisoners organized globally as part of “one big union” that uses the strike as a weapon to fight against austerity and white su-

Before the revolutionary goals of incarcerated people and the IWW through mutual organizing of a worldwide union for emancipation from the prison system.

2. To build class solidarity amongst members of the working class by connecting the struggle of people in prison, jails, and immigrant and juvenile detention centers to workers struggles locally and worldwide.

3. To strategically and tactically support prisoners locally and worldwide, incorporating an analysis of white supremacy, patriarchy, prison culture, and capitalism.

4. To actively struggle to end the criminalization, exploitation, and enslavement of working class people, which disproportionately targets people of color, immigrants, people with low incomes, LGBTQ+ people, young people, prisoners, and those with mental illnesses.

5. To amplify the voices of working class people in prison, especially those engaging in collective action or who put their own lives at risk to improve the conditions of all.

We have to decide: Do we want to produce quality that will inspire and move people and contribute to a goal, or do we want to be a forum for terrible material no one else will print?

US sometime. The police indiscriminately killing black people, the school to prison pipeline, and slavery in prison, perpetuate white supremacy in the US.

MR: Corporations run the prison industrial complex. There are more businessmen involved in politics than ever. Prisons represent savings in operating costs for companies because normal expenses such as taxes, social security ... there is no overtime when the work is done by inmates.

Companies finance PACs (Political Action Committees created to raise funds to support candidates in political elections), and then pressure politicians to their advantage to pass laws that allow them to access prison labor. Sometimes there are even companies that buy or build prisons directly. But for this investment to work, the company must guarantee that the work is available in the long term. Therefore, politicians tend to pass laws as “mandatory minimums”, “three strikes” and all kinds of sentences for drug possession. The result is that there is a mass imprisonment in the US, with deplorable conditions and abuses ... and profits remain very high.

RB: Why speak of modern slavery?

CD: Slavery never ended in this country. This is one of the key messages we want to give the average citizen through our movement. It is written in our constitution. The thirteenth amendment “abolished” slavery “except as a punishment for a crime.”

MR: From my point of view the term “modern slavery” is wrong, because slavery never ended. There is nowhere in the US Constitution that says it’s done. In fact, many prisons such as Angola in Louisiana were built on old plantations. The plantation became a prison. The slave became convict. The owner became jailer. I simply followed the money circulating at the expense of black people. In our article “Let the Crops Rot In The Field,” I cite research showing that in the mid-1800s Alabama received around 70% of its state budget from convict slave labor. Most state governments still balance their budgets with labor decisions, fines, and legal exploitation through phones, commissary, incentives ... even charging a medical co-payment. But keep in mind that all these costs are borne by people working for free. This is how slavery has always worked.

RB: What are the objectives of the strike? What effect do you think it will have?

MR: The main objective is to raise awareness about the deception and what is happening, and show that there is a real and viable solution to the problem of mass incarceration. I demonstrated the ability to solve this problem is in our hands, literally, through the work we do as prisoners. Not lawyers, or politicians, or the President; an organization that is not only us who are inside. All you have to do is let the crops rot in the ground. Let the factories remain idle. Let the products of the cafeteria rot.

CD: When you remove the economic motivation and improve the conditions of workers in the prison system, all the judicial and police structures for control and capture of prisoners must change and treat us like human beings, rather than as slaves. Initially, I think the state repression will be very hard against the prisoners on strike. I have no doubt they will be placed in isolation or segregation, and their belongings will be confiscated and their few rights will be restricted indefinitely. So we think it’s important to create a strong network of support from outside, so that we can mobilize and help them against repression. But the long-term hope is to open a national discussion about the fact that slavery must end. The companies and the state are making a lot of money putting people in prison, and mass imprisonment has been used as a means of social control and to perpetuate white supremacy. So we see our efforts inside and outside prison leading to a mass-movement to end slavery and white supremacy. ... And a general strike to end the capitalist system that sustains it.

RB: What organizations are supporting the strike?

CD: The prisoners are those who call the strike. IWOC is fully responsible for the strike.

in Alabama escalated when the prison guards went on strike. By the first week of October, no guards were on duty. The warden was left with the task of pulling out the food cart to the striking incarcerated workers. This is the first time in Alabama’s history that prison guards have gone on strike, according to news site “It’s Going Down,” and it’s even more stunning under the pretense of a national prisoner strike. South Carolina incarcerated workers continued their strike, earning their place as one of the longest mass stoppages held by prisoners in the national strike, according to IWOC. Jailhouse Lawyers Speak members of the strike began sending out live Tweets from South Carolina prisons, giving updates on the strike. One of the most inspiring Tweets was a repost of incarcerated workers fighting back against guards who tried to break the strike with violence, as seen here: On that note, it is of grave importance to shed light on the repression that these brave incarcerated workers faced. These brave souls risked life and death to bring this struggle to the ends of the Earth! One of the first instances of repression was when political prisoner, Lucasville Uprising veteran, and IWW incarcerated worker organizer Imam Hasan was sent to the hole and faced interrogation by both Ohio state authorities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in regards to the strike. He faced Islamophobic accusations by the Ohio State Penitentiary that he encouraged a suicide bomb attack on Sept. 9. Imam Hasan and his Muslim brothers went on hunger strike when the prison authorities threatened to cut off their rights. He was later faced with more threats by the prison authorities for his communication with media outlets such as National Public Radio (NPR), in promotion of the prisoners strike. Outside support of IWOC did play an important role in minimizing the repression. Prisoners from South Carolina to Alabama and beyond gave thanks for the phone zaps and how long incarcerated required the prison guards to go on strike. They were also inspired by a recent upsurge in solidarity confinement. Though these may feel like liberal tactics, they are of utmost importance; they are like laying down covering fire for our incarcerated comrades in the trenches. We must keep in mind that in Waupun Correctional Institution in Wisconsin, an ongoing hunger strike called the “Dying to Live” strike, which was led by brave incarcerated workers like Caesar DeLeon, has been going on since June. These prisoners are facing intensive retaliation, including forced feedings. So, finally, it looks like the One Big Union is making a comeback by organizing not just wage slaves, but workers who are literally slaves by the U.S. Constitution. This strike has made history and its revolutionary momentum is still burning, but there is still a lot of work that needs to be done. We may not have dismantled the prison industrial complex or abolished prison slavery entirely, but the striking incarcerated workers along with the help of our union have accelerated us past a point of no return in the fight for abolition!

There have never been a free people, a free country, or a real democracy on the face of this earth. Yet, the vast majority of Americans believe in its ideals. In the hopes of conveying a belief, the Oval Office is occupied by a vanilla wafer, not of slave blood, but a freeman of color who does the bidding of his handlers. This is America’s exemplification of democracy; however, the United States enslaves a quarter of the world’s prisoners, and places those who are outside the walls into indentured servitude. Insanity is when a shout of “Let’s Make America Great Again” is followed by bodies being strapped to student loan debts, medical bills, and IRS garnishments in exchanged for life sentences in concrete prison cells. Fifty years after the Black Panther Party, an armed revolutionary party that fought for black self-determination, was infiltrated, compromised, and decimated, pathetic African American leaders faced with blatant racist policies, though despite praise of achievement toward equality, and feigned ignorance of the fact that sister and brother Panthers were jailed and imprisoned on trumped-up charges, and should receive pardons, march nonviolently against the disproportionate political and economic system in practice within the United States. As oxymoronic as placing in context a black-Trotskyite, and going to war, it would be clear even to them if after seventy-five years of marching, and equality had not been achieved, an armed struggle would be the solution. It’s these African American Negroes which, while our Sister and Brother Panthers were sold out and fed to corporate America’s rapacious economic growth, sold positions in the United States- as- house servants in Candyland. Does the average African American think he or she is beyond America’s despot’s disproportionate distribution of equality? How long has it been since slaves needed a pass to leave plantations, blacks were segregated and Jim Crowed or Negroes were relined into urban deserts? It happened to me yesterday, as I walked from my cell to a privatized state phone, watched by a million cameras, as contents of my recorded phone calls can be used against me in a court of their laws to stage a conspiracy. The parallels from my experience of armed guards posted at checkpoints, licensed by the state, ready to kill non-whites based on a subjective threat, are drawn between Afghans and Palestinians detained and being bombed by drones. It was necessary for the United States’ agencies of count-er-revolution to kill the Black Panther Movement, so the linchpin for mass incarceration, zero tolerance anti-crime fascist policing, and the proliferation of the killing of unarmed black men could be set and prevent any uprising for freedom and liberty.

In efforts to protect the ruling class’s imperialist system of economics, the political system of the United States, with every uprising they used criminal justice policies as a way to sever the head from the body and have gone as far as removal of genitals as a message to those would be leaders. Case in point: Nat Turner’s uprising that forced the Na- tional Guard to rescue slave owners; the Panther’s armed usurpation of the Cali- fornia’s Capitol while legisla- tors were in session; D-Day Nation uprising after the death of Comrade George Jackson that took over the yard; the riots in Go’s that threaten to burn down the United States’ cities. These events sparked the political consciousness of convicts, although every battle ended in death of its leaders. However, the consequence of an armed struggle for the self-assertion of freedom that results in defeat is an elevated fear level, based on the ruling class’ socially constructed link to criminal violence. This allows for an increase in the funding for policing and increase restric-tion through control. This is from solitary confinement. Though these may feel like liberal tactics, they are of utmost importance; they are like laying down covering fire for our incarcerated comrades in the trenches. We must keep in mind that in Waupun Correctional Institution in Wisconsin, an ongoing hunger strike called the “Dying to Live” strike, which was led by brave incarcerated workers like Caesar DeLeon, has been going on since June. there is nothing natural about it. There is something in the food served or purchased causing this. We are being killed in here by many daily subtle means and you are paying the medical costs for it. Inferior quality of the food and daily super high stress, pain and anxiety is deliberate indifference of physical injury that is resulting in wrongful death. Just as pitbulls are trained to kill, the DOC’s policies have purposely attributed to the mind state of those released. A day in the life and time of my life is very stressful and very unfilling. The most minimal accomplishments are hard fought for and seldom achieved if going thru the powers that be have anything to do with it. I have to be consciously aware at all times. When you let it be known through your actions that you know the DOC is conspiring against you for trouble but they want to demean you further, history shows that this will eventually cause a riot. They will tell you, I told you so, they are monsters need to be overthrown and this should have been stopped. Not let them get away with continuing to instill the negative behavior traits of those being released, and killing those of us which are stuck in here. They are spending hundreds of millions of your tax dollars for their own gain, not fulfilling the purpose of bettering the conditions of mankind. They are creating the chaos and violence and then popping their collars in the public’s eye asking for more funds and justifying why they are needed. The best way to fix this is to ridicule them. We ask that you all keep an eye on Holman. They are trying to break the resistance, smash F.A.M., and continue business as it was before the resistance. We ask that y’all continue to attack the judicial and criminal justice system. Let’s continue to make shit ungovernable. More updates on the ongoing struggles will be posted in the next issue. It is also very important to note that solidarity actions with the strike continued all over the world! www.famnc.org why politicians’ create a climate of fear and was the explanation to why Johnson’s redistribution of wealth failed, yet produced a dangerous black militant class that rooted in return of whites’ generosity. It can be argued that the public was deceived into believing that the Fugitive Slave Law, Mann Act, Harrison Act, Hale Boggs’ Mandatory Minimum, Wickersham Commission, Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act, Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970, Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Anti-Drug Abuse Act (1986 Act that produced the dubious “100 to 1” ratio that copies the Peculiar Institution’s laws that disproportionately gave blacks longer sentences than whites), Clinton’s Community Oriented Policing Service (COPS), 1994, and 1996 Omnibus Crime Bills, Anti-terrorism and Effect Death Penalty Act (AEDPA) would allow them to sleep comfortably at night. I cannot argue whether or not Americans comfortably sleep after trillions and of dollars are spent on control and surveillance of boogiemen, but rather it is systemic repression delivered in an opiod delusion on a beauty rest, which is scarier. However, I know it beyond the realm of reality to believe that the containment of black and brown bodies will free white Americans; moreover, I can argue that the United States understood that the Panthers and all the organizations that presumably followed would have challenged freedom. This crisis was the reason for state and federal funding of military style policing that produced the chaos and resulted in the labeling those Panthers as a black gang of disloyalty that is resulting in wrongful death. In order to preserve the United States’ oppressive defunct political and economic system, African American Negroes have accepted a commercialized version of our story. The governing narrative of past, present and future events controlled by us is our story. Our story: heroic struggles that allows us to behold ourselves and our place in the world as satirical entertainment for others. For example, African American Negroes that thought that Beyoncé’s commercialization of the Black Panther’s brand was repre-senting us were incorrect. Elaine Brown has pointed out that “Beyoncé’s performance celebration of our story that does not allow Panthers to be honored like revolutionaries are in Cuba, but appear as women in costume where Henry as child stood outside Master Robbins’ mansion and waited to groom his master’s horse. The African American....

Scientists Study Distant Stars

This is the English translation of an interview of Melvin Ray of Free Alabama Movement and Cole Dorsey of Oakland IWO. It was originally printed before the strike began, in Solidaridad Obrera, a publication of the CNT, an anarchist Spanish trade union. Founded in 1930, the CNT participated in the Spanish Civil War against the fascists from 1936-39.

Bennu Hannibal Sun-Ra (Melvin Ray), from Holman prison in Alabama, is a founder and representative of the Free Alabama Movement. Cole Dorsey spent three years in prison in Michigan, and joined the IWO a month after his release in 2004. He is currently part of Oakland IWO and the Bay Area IWW.

Roca Beltran: What can you tell us about the background to this strike?

Cole Dorsey: From my experience in prison, collective action is usually taken for a variety of reasons: the quality of food, access to recreation, access to commissary... It is nothing new that prisoners have organized and tried to change things from within. What's new is that now we are building a solid network of people outside to support, publicize, and amplify these collective actions that prisoners are doing.

There has been a resurgence of activity in recent years. From the prison strike in Georgia in 2010 to the hunger strikes of prisoners in California, prisoners are taking more and more actions to deal with their conditions. The Free Alabama Movement (FAM) started in 2004, that year there was an uprising at Holman Prison in Alabama. In this struggle, members of the industrial Workers of the World (IWW) began to be involved with Melvin Ray and FAM to support them.

At this time the IWW also contacted Texas prisoners who claimed they wanted to organize. All this culminated in the creation of Incarcerated Workers Organizing Committee (IWO) by IWW members.

September 9 is a significant date because this cause marks the 45th anniversary of that day's Attica riot. The prisoners have called for action on 9 September to end slavery in prison, "refusing to be slaves anymore." Melvin Ray: For us in the Free Alabama Movement these protests are following three years of existence and participation in protests and awareness about slavery and mass incarceration.

Our first protest in January 2014, at Holman Prison was the starting point of the movement. In 2014 after a successful new round of protests, we began to develop the concept and to call a national protest in a document called the Six Step Plan of Action 2015. After that, we began the process of organization. Today that day has arrived.

RB: Can you explain how corporations are connected with the management of prisons and the criminal justice system of the United States?

CD: Companies have learned they can get huge profits from slavery in prison. Before, outsourcing the work to China, India, and Mexico gave them the benefit of paying low wages in these countries. These same companies are now "outsourcing" these jobs within the country through the prisons. Since prisoners are considered "custody" of the state, companies do not have to pay insurance or taxes, or worry if a worker has an accident. All labor issues are managed by the prison administration. Refusing to work may result in a longer sentence, solitary confinement and other restrictions. Companies have a skilled workforce which they only have to pay pennies per hour within their own centers.

The prison industrial complex generates billions of dollars. It is a lucrative business that has grown with private prisons. Although the Department of Justice recently announced it is closing private prisons, this will only affect about 10 federal prisons. There are still private prisons at state level, plus all these inmates will simply be transferred to other centers.

With the industrialization of this country, the response of states to control people has been the mass imprisonment which disproportionately affects people of color. The huge mass of workers that are barely paid, there is the threat that the bulk of American workers could lose if they are not compliant, with their employment outsourced to the prison population.

Although statistically crime rates have declined over the years, the number of prisoners has skyrocketed. 80% of black men have been in the system of "justice".
To all of my fellow inmates, to all supporters, and friends/family of the F.F.U.P. (Friends For Understanding Prisoners). Please be aware that the Wisconsin Department of Corrections are now engaging in the blatant sabotage and wholesale stagnation of our re-entry into society as productive and changed citizens.

Now, some of you are asking the questions. How and/or why would or could I make such a bold statement? On April 11, 2016, the Wisconsin legislature enacted, 2015 Wisconsin ALS 1, 2016. This implementation requires that all restitution owed by an inmate be paid in full, prior to paying any Victim/Witness/Debtors. The usual rule was that the inmate would be paid $20 and could keep the money order. Under this scheme, any amount owed by an inmate (family, friends) would not be valid any longer. This forces an inmate to remain in the same thinking patterns and behaviors that brought them to prison just to survive from one day to the next in prison.

Mindfulness Can Influence Memory

To all of my fellow inmates, to all supporters, and friends/family of the F.F.U.P. (Friends For Understanding Prisoners). Please be aware that the Wisconsin Department of Corrections are now engaging in the blatant sabotage and whole-sale stagnation of our rehabilitative efforts and our successful re-entry into society as productive and changed citizens. Now, some of you are asking the questions. How and/or why would or could I make such a bold statement? On April 11, 2016, the Wisconsin legislature enacted, 2015 Wisconsin ALS Act 355, which became effective July 1, 2016. This implementation requires that all restitution owed by an inmate be paid in full, prior to paying any Victim/Witness or other court related costs. Inside this world, the Wisconsin Dept. of Corrections is the agency that is given the authority to change the court-ordered 25% deduction from an inmate's prison wages to 50% (violating the Doctrine of Separation of Powers). This is done under language changes made to DAI Policy 309.45.02-Inmate Trust System Deductions. These changes have caused amendments to sections of 373 of Wisconsin State Statutes which now give the Wis. Dept. of Corrections explicit authority to do the following: a) the authority to combine all inmate trust accounts (i.e. IQ/other release accounts) into a regular/inaccessible account, work release, etc.), and using this type of computation then deduct 50% of the previous month's total, claiming it is for restitution owed victims for loss of things from us at this Branch NAACP because the Warden will not approve it. He will not approve basic supplies for us to make contributions to the prison community. Since we can't have our interests funded, we refused to sign his thousand dollar requests, even after he threatened to take our meeting and shut us down. The warden has, under the pretense of a bogus investigation locked (in the hole) our last three Presidents, then had them transferred. This has extended over a six year period. So, we don't function. Our efforts are spent steadfastly trying to get the red tape. His last tactic was to lock down the new president. This has caused the NAACP branch here not to function.

The Warden refused to allow us to reorder the frozen veggies we use as our ongoing fund raiser. If we're not going to delegate our funds to his whim there won't be any funds generated and our dietary needs met.

Absolute Porter breeds absolute corruption. There can be no justice if every law and its procedures are absolute. The public is not aware of the many forms of corruption taking place with their hard earned taxes. On the one hand these prizes were built to bring much needed finances to poor rural communities. On the other hand, a small percentage of the contracts, over inflated invoices for standard goods and services is the norm. Tracing just who get the lion share of these monies will reveal a clique of a few who have created an exact science and long term goal of converting your tax dollar to privatized funds. The best way to do this is by creating chaos amongst the prisoners. By creating an atmosphere of confusion and fear, the Department of Corrections can destroy the rehabilitative efforts going on here.
2016 IWW Referendum: Election Results

We meant to get out this edition of The Incarcerated Worker much earlier, but due to many inconveniences we are a tad late. However, this means we can now include the election results of our union!

Mindfulness Can Influence Memory, cont. This money to purchase gym shoes (even though the DOC will not supply me any); I cannot use these funds to purchase educational materials or legal books and dictionaries, nor to purchase gifts for my kids or grand-kids. That is not only draconian, but the whole implementa-tion violates Article 1; Section 12 of the Wiscon-sin Constitution-(Ex Post Facto).

When I was a carnival game operator, we called what the DOC is doing, “Theft by Deception”. Maybe my sta-tus as a prison inmate has me a little biased in my opin-ions, but facts do not lie. So please do your research and see for yourself, that you have given me the Gospel Truth in this matter. The DOC will take 65% of an in-mate’s funds even if they come from friends and family trying to help him or her get through the rough times, until all debts are paid or the inmate has no funds left (release or otherwise). Nutrition and Your Heart

The following is a summary written by me (Mike Lucas) for the Industrial Worker, the outside newspa-per for the IWW. The reports were too numerous and epic to be put into our usual timeline format. Thus, I share this with honor, but all the praise is yours my fellow workers on the inside. I’ll have my hearts swell with pride here on the outside. The 1st 1st Month of the National Prison Strike By FW Mike L., The Incarcerated Worker outside editor “Prisoners are now realizing that by withholding their labor they have the power to shut down prisons and get the authorities, at the very least, to reevalu-ate the prison slave labor system. In essence, they are realizing that striking is a necessary stepping stone in changing the prison system and the dynam-ics of prison slave labor.” – Phillip Ruiz, former incarcerated worker and member of the IWW Incar-cerated Workers Organizing Committee (IWW COC), in “Why Prison Strikes Are Necessary: An Ex-Prisoner’s Experience.” On the night before Sept. 9, 2016—the 45th anniversary of the Attica Prison uprising and the date set for a national prisoner labor strike—a riot erupted at Holmes Correctional Institution in Florida. More than 440 incarcerated workers rose up in rebellion, barricades were built, cameras were broken, fires were set, and all hell broke loose. Rapid Researcher Studies Prarie Dog Communities, cont. Negro insistance to be allowed into white America is Henry “shivering in the rage he tied around his feet...Robbins told his slave shoemaker ‘make the...was to eat in the kitchen with them and forever be clothed right.” Today Henry still waits outside his master’s mansion they’ll be clothed, and fed by the system. This is the reason why they watched calmly as Black/Latino criminals,...defunct system. Time has made African American Negroes’ sup-positions correct, though. Our story is now white washed and race laden criminal policies that were used to provide a place in Candyland for African American Negroes and cells for those who fought against the class-biased system of oppression.

Fifty years after, the Black Panter Party was infiltrated, compromised, and decimated, I wondered, Celebrate? What? Why? Do I reminisce on those rats that now tell their story with pride? Should I celebrate all the dirty cops that planted evidence, beat and lied on the stand who super structure that uses broken glass laws to harass black lives? It’s African American Negroes who can look forward, with greasy chicken lip grins, without looking back to pull up our broth-ers. Brothers, who were sold out and now rot in filthy sterile hermetically sealed cages, as I sit too, political conscious, with neo-prison Bob Marley dreads parted; stoned faced like my facial expression was chiseled in granite by Emory Douglas, and all that’s needed to complete the picture is a gun, a fat, raised with bruised white knuckles and clenched in solitary. Though desperately missing reality being that I cannot celebrate the abstract liberty of living in prison like educated, color-blind African American Negroes, with programmed neo-leftist wives, in slit level homes, in projector, in Obama Care, and IRS garnishments, experiencing all the abstract liberties, but devoid of basic human satisfactions. They do not despise the system that made mass incarceration, but helped fund it and watched as it seized upon powerless black men and hacked them to death, remov-ing the dental, their bloody body chain yet beyond the sight of ocular sameness; however, within accepted deprivation of freedom and equality. The African American Negro expe-rience post-Panther revolution enjoyed, and necessary to earn a position in overpopulated civili-zed society. Let them celebrate; I can’t, the bell just rung, and I got locked in. What?! Living Survivor of Chronic Sys-tem Incarceration Maurice Ward response teams were called in from five different county prisons to put down the rebellion. No matter what, the seal had been broken at that point and the spirit of Attica was now in the air! The flames from this rebellion in Florida would light the torch for what would become the largest prisoner strike in U.S. history. By the next morning, Free Alabama Movement (FAM), one of the main organizing groups for the strike and a building force for IWOC, sent out an immediate press release for the national strike. FAM also reported a full shut-down of Holman Correctional Institution, one of the most infamous prisons in Alabama and a key organizing site of FAM. A FAM committee from Holman reported: “Sept. 9, all prisoners at Holman Prison refused to report to their prison jobs without incident. With the rising of the sun came an eerie silence as the men at Holman laid on their racks reading or sleeping. Officers are performing all tasks.” The Carolinas flamed up with strike activity. North Carolina reported people refusing to go to work, but no major lockdown. South Carolina strikers released a list of demands drafted by Jailhouse Lawyers Speak, an allied group of IWOC. “End of prison slavery” was one of the core demands of the list released. South Carolina continues to grow a major powerhouse of the strike. The Virginia branch of IWOC reported that the Fluvanna Correctional Center for Women joined the strike, and a women’s prison in California went on hunger strike in solidarity. The infamous Merced County Jail in California also joined in the national strike via mass hunger strike. Political prisoner Chelsea Manning was on strike for her rights to gender reassignment surgery and inmates at Guantanamo Bay were also on strike, but both of these strikes may not be directly related to the national strike. However, Manning did win her rights to surgery. Meanwhile, demonstrations all over the United States erupted. Nearly every major city had a noise demo outside of a jail or another site related to the prison industrial complex. One of the most charismatic demonstrations came from Oakland, Calif. Oakland had a demonstration in which more than 300 people, and as the tension escalated, major damages were hit against prison profiteers such as Bank of America, which was torched. Comrades throughout the globe came out in support of the strike. Supporters in Spain, the United Kingdom, Germany, Hungary, India, China, Brazil, Australia, Serbia and other locales held banner drops and demonstrations outside of U.S. embassies. Greek comrades had a demonstration outside of a women’s penitentiary, and cell blocks of radical Greek incarcerated workers from Korydallos sent a salute to the strike. On Oct. 3, the same blocks joined in the strike in solidarity by refusing work and kicking all the guards out of the blocks. Back in the United States on Sept. 11, the strike expanded to other states, including a large uprising at one of the major detention centers in Michigan called the Kinross Correctional Facility. Approximately 440 incarcerated workers refused to work and started a protest march. The situation escalated into fires being set, barricades built, and several rapid response teams being brought in from other prisons throughout the state to end the rebellion. According to media sources, 1,200 incarcerated workers participated in the rebellion, and 350 of them were transferred as targeted agitators of the strike. As the strike continued throughout the first month, several states such as Washington, Nebraska, Texas and others were reported to have strike activity. IWOC members on the outside called prisons to find out which ones were on lock-down and conducted other extensive research to accumulate the actual impact of the strike. Our initial research estimated approximately 27 different prisons with more than 27,000 prisoners affected by the strike, but this number later increased to be an estimate near 47,000 prisoners and 49 different facilities affected. Wobblyies and supporter marches through Oakland, protests against prison industrial complex profiteers. Photo: ights.org's Going down.org Graphic: IWOC Incarcerated workers strike across the United States on September 9th. Report from the prison strike’s first month: Jailhouse Lawyers Speak • Fall 2016 The strike at Holman was a trillion dollar industry. The prison industrial complex is so interwoven in the basic functioning of the American economy, that many believe to end free prison labor, or profiting from the system could cause a economic collapse. It is not our goal to cause an economic collapse, but to shift the economics from the human exploitation of prisoners. We do this by abolishing/amending the 13th amendment exception clause. A prisoners “time” is solely based on economics, as corporate lobbyist persuaded lawmakers to push bills to keep prison beds filled. Filled prison beds equal easy pickings for corporations of taxpayers’ dollars, and cheap labor where needed. With no incentive through a 13th amendment clause, the course on how the Nation regards those that have fallen short and the releasing of those in the prisons will change completely.

Join us as we move forward into another chapter of prison resistance. Spread the word in your cell block, through your collect phone calls, on visit, letters, have people to be on the Washington Mall. In one voice we can change the Constitution, forcing cell doors open in every state. Let’s demand an end to these economic driven prison sentences and pointless parole hearings. It’s time to dismantle the Prison Industrial Complex!

-The MPOC (Millions for Prisoners Human Rights Organizing Committee) is the voice of the prisoners outside the jail.

The MPOC is not an organization, but a Coalition title to recognize a Collective committee function.

This mission has been in the works for over a year now. Actual work started a few months ago when IAM WE Prison Advocacy Network took on the leading organizing efforts outside the wall.

The Demonstration will be used to expose the 13th world-wide, expose exploiting companies, re educate the people, promote abolition and organize stronger prisoner resistance outside the prisons to dismantle the Prison Industrial Complex.

Stacked in a cage behind a wall or inside a fence, how did I get here? It makes little sense. Another child born into abuse, just another soul for the system to use. Socially disadvantaged, there is not much chance of success. Institutionalized, now my life is a mess! Each trip to this place steals more and more of my soul. My identity lost I live in a dark empty hole. Loved ones lost, no lover, no home. They all claimed they loved you but now I’m left alone. That’s such a nightmare you say, surely that all can’t be true. But, believe me there is no doubt, you’re now just a dollar sign they won’t let you go. This is all so ridiculous you tell me confused, surely this all can’t be real! Just make sure it’s not your whole your life the system next steals! This poem is titled: Lost Souls, by Anthony Heidenreich and was written in Solitary confinement

New Study Finds Horses Look to Humans for Help With Problem Solving

JLS is a national organization started by Jailhouse lawyers. Our primary focus is to challenge laws that are dehumanizing to prisoners and educating prisoners about these laws. We are also focused on educating and engaging the public at large about prisoners’ human rights violations. We are abolitionists, and believe that the current model of how we deal with those that have fallen short must be dismantled. This can only be done by prisoners speaking out. Prisoners must use their own voice and organizing skills to connect with the world for change. The current project of JLS is the Millions for Prisoners Human Rights March on Washington, to abolish (in part or whole) the 13th amendment. Here’s a little about the organizing body for this historic event.

Millions for Prisoners Human Rights

As the momentum of the National Prison strike continues to unfold, so are the next stages of prison resistance. Jailhouse Lawyers Speak, has announced plans to have a mass demonstration on the Washington DC Mall, August 19, 2017. With the imprisonment numbers being at 2.4 million, and climbing, we believe a million plus of this Nation’s citizens will participate. We are not even calculating in the citizens with loved ones in county jails, youth halls, or on probation and parole. The numbers are shocking. When viewed as a whole, we see that the Nation has indeed created another class (the prison class); made up of mostly the poor and people of color. It is this prison class and all those connected to them that will shake this country to its foundation.

Since the inception of the lie that slavery was abolished, America year after year has ignored prisoners’ complaints of the 13th amendment’s punishment exception clause. Instead states and the government monopolized the slave trade, and contracted out humans convicted of crimes to private enterprises. Today, the Prison Industrial Complex is estimated by some to be a trillion dollar industry. The Prison Industrial Complex is so interwoven in the basic functioning of the American economy, that many believe to end free prison labor, or profiting off crime could cause an economic collapse. It is not our goal to cause an economic collapse, but to shift the economics from the human exploitation of prisoners. We
